Green and Gold

Foreword

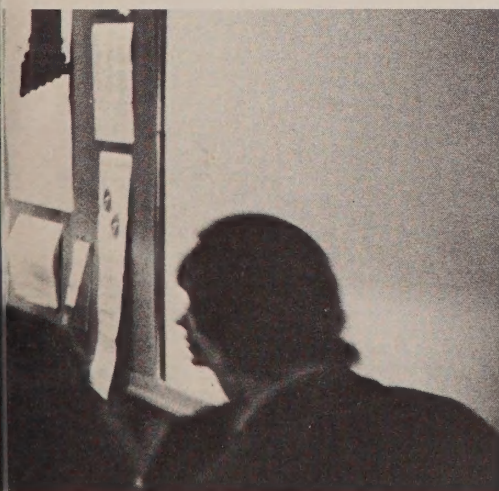

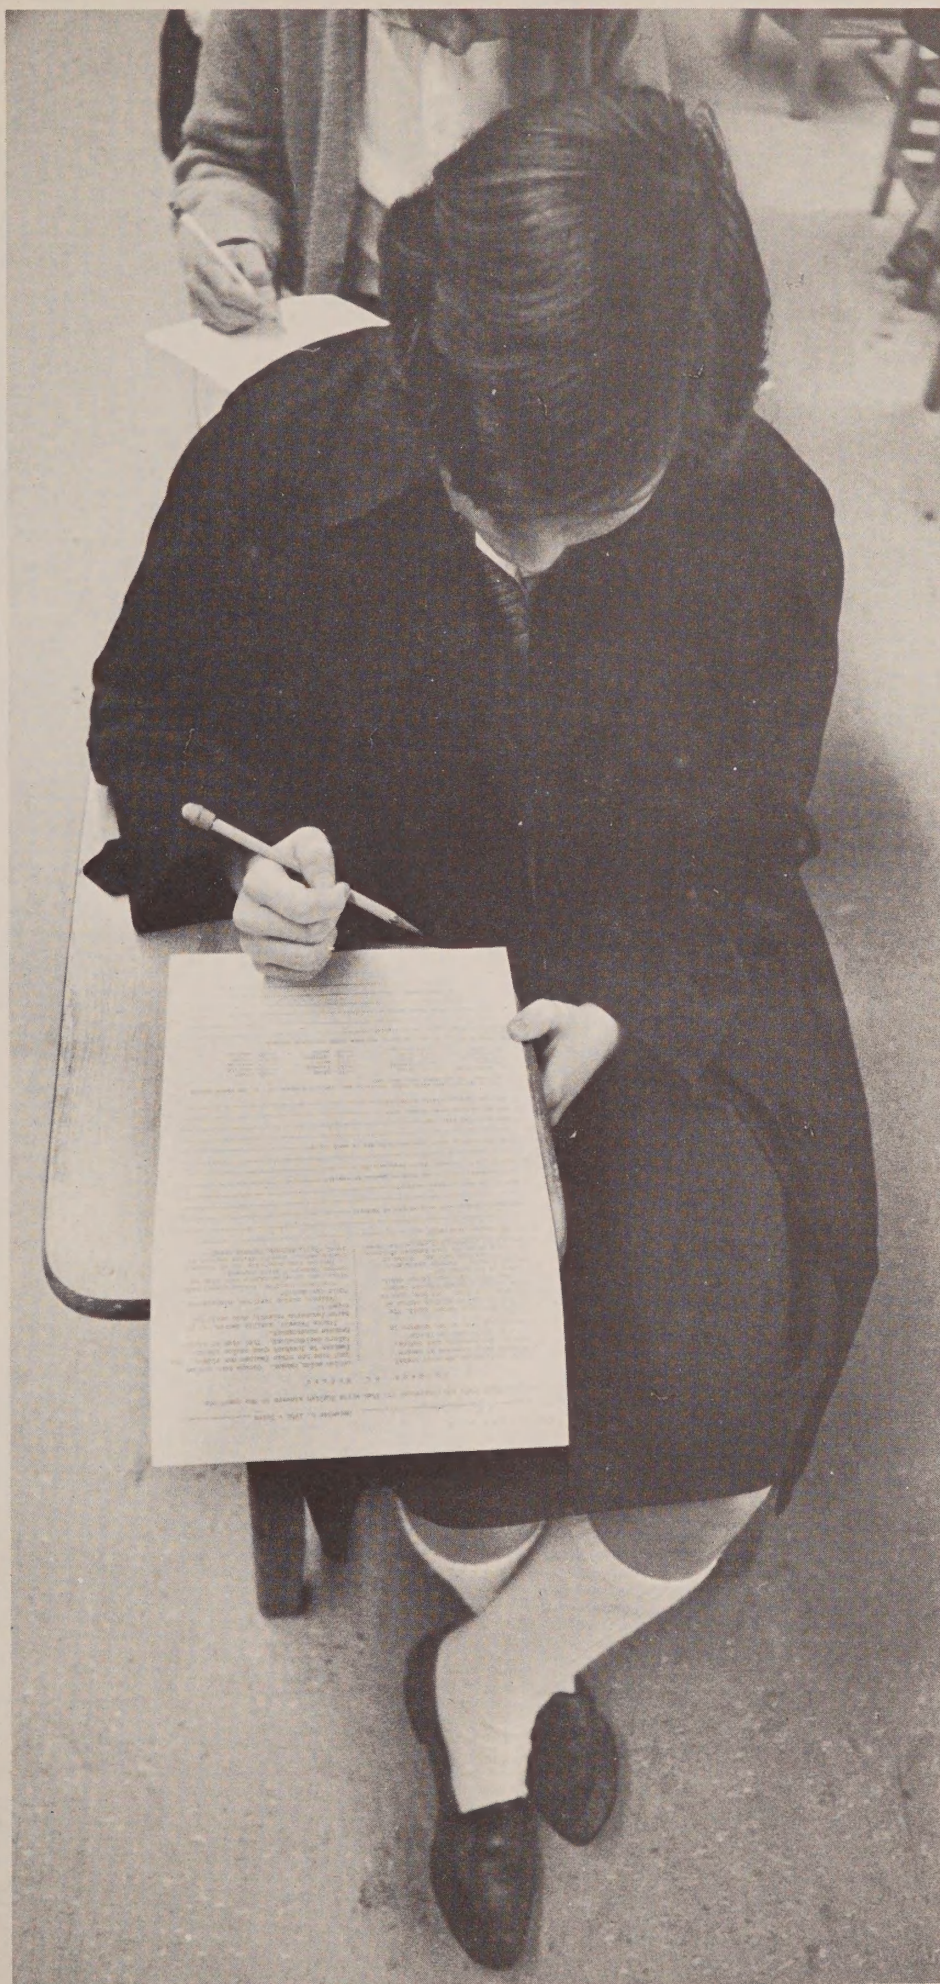

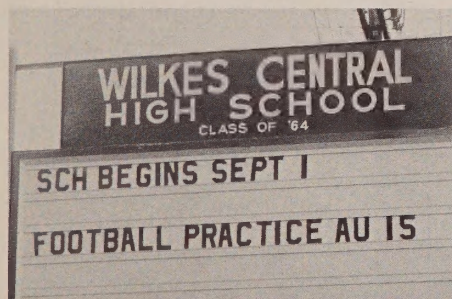

Seniors study Shakespeare, and "the world's a stage." We students observe that our world, the world of Wilkes Central, is a stage. Throughout the months of 1964-65 at Wilkes Central, vari-colored, multitudinous drama has opened before our eyes—in our halls, in our classrooms, on our campus. For many of us, memories of this full year will consist of a series of vivid sketches, scenes lifted from the drama about us and etched in our minds and hearts by chance or art. The drama of study, the candid, unrehearsed comedy of everyday incidents, the occasional tragedy of failure—these are a few scripts in which we all have been not only spectators of the play, but actors as well. We have shared the laughter and the tears, have applauded and have received applause. Now we wish to share with you a portion of our drama in the 1965 Green and Gold.

Dedication

Wilkes Central's yearbook staff dedicates the 1965 Green and Gold to a staff member who has given selflessly of her time in both the curricular and cocurricular programs at Central. Having a warm personality and natural enthusiasm, she has been not only a courteous and most effective librarian but also one keenly interested in the individual pupil, his progress and his activities.

To Mrs. Virginia Brame, librarian, the staff is proud to dedicate the 1965 Green and Gold.

Five minutes is all too short a time to travel from one end of the campus to the other.

Drama unfolds in

The band parking lot saw many such maneuvers during the fall doughnut sale.

The show must go on, and it is the students who carry the action from room to room.

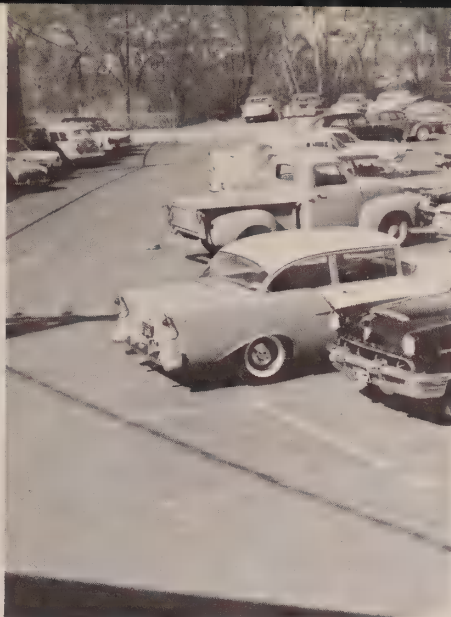

The halls that only moments ago housed hundreds of resounding voices, are silent at 3:15.

During the half-time break in the basketball game, the multi-purpose room is crowded with refreshment seekers.

Central's halls and parking lots

The student parking lots form the backdrop for scenes ranging from bustling activity to ones of solitude.

Books are haphazardly laid aside as students hurry to lunch.

Ordinarily rain quickens the pace, but Jerry Brookshire seems to care little as he heads for the m. p. room.

Wayne Cook struggles to get a piece of chewing gum from his jacket as he and Carolyn Hogan chat between classes.

Providing entertainment for the Student Council's Christmas dance is the local combo, "The Boys."

Coach Branch takes a "Sego break" while he and fellow teachers relax in the teachers' lounge.

Jim Richardson drives around the side but is well-guarded by Jim Smoak and Sonny Thomas in the student-faculty game.

Spotlighting activities

These senior football players turn their attention towards the speaker's table at the annual athletic banquet.

The AFROTC drill team provides half-time entertainment during the Newton game.

Jim and Shirley Pipes and Franklin Houck sing "Julie Ann" in the "Hul-dig-nanny" presented in assembly.

These students check with Miss Pearson as they support the Lions' Club Foreign Exchange program by selling Halloween candy.

Pool, a fascinating and challenging recreation, is enjoyed by many students, including Paul Southwell.

and social life

Rehearsing is done during the hours spent on the practice field and in classrooms

With the help of Miss Clements' prodding and daily practice, the chorus perfects its singing ability.

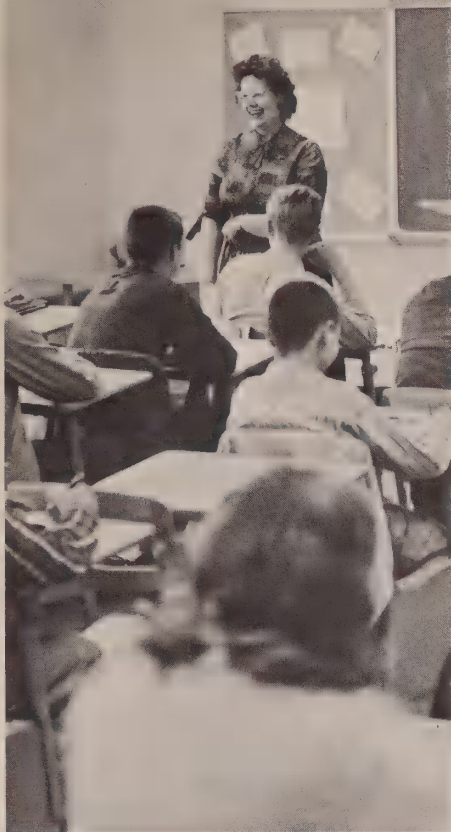

Behind the scenes, some cannot take the everyday grind without a break.

The quiet of the library provides these students with a few moments to dig out the facts for themselves.

Bucko Buchan tees off during practice at the Oakwoods Country Club.

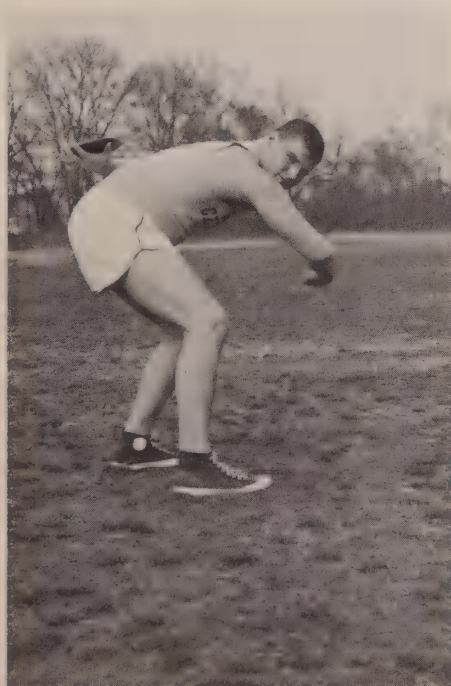

These boys are more engrossed in that mysterious sheet of paper than in music-making.

If her students enjoy English class as much as Mrs. Greene does, they will be eager for that upcoming test.

Saturday morning found these boys supporting the Student Council's track field improvement project.

Wrestling practice provides Billy Poole with an opportunity to utilize both brains and brawn.

In individual sports such as track, each person plays an important role.

After hours of drilling and repetition, we face the rising curtain with confidence

Coach Madison and the girls on the bench are engrossed in a tense moment of play.

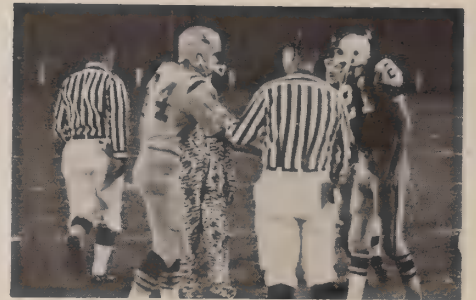

During a time-out Coach Madison reviews plays with Roy Williamson and Stephen Foster.

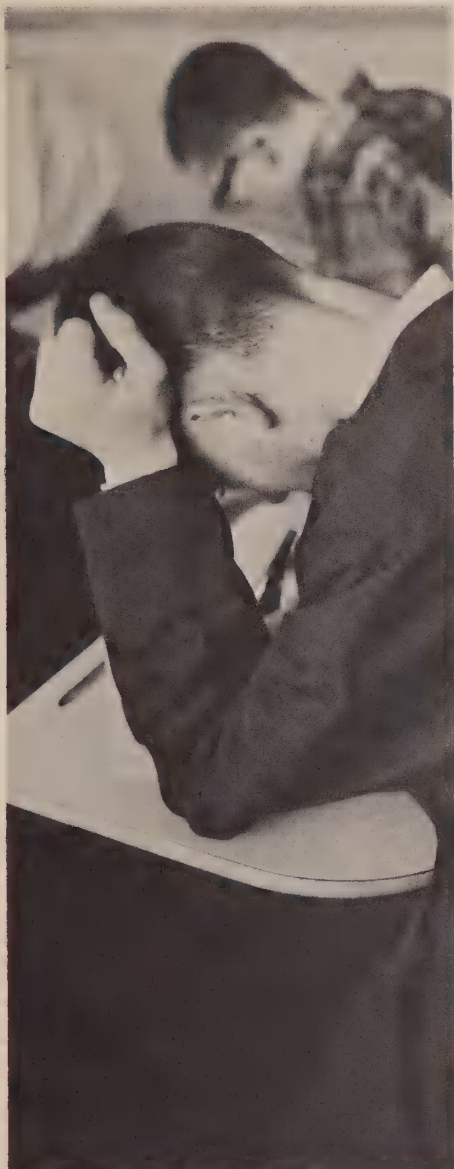

"The play's the thing" is shown by Coaches Thornburg's and Welborn's charting of fumbles, mistakes, and yardage.

Those behind the scene wait for their cues to go on stage.

Officials and team captains meet midfield before play can begin.

Even though he is prepared, Dicky Grayson must concentrate in order to complete his advanced math test.

In a burst of spirit the cheerleaders begin the game with the ritual student-band line-up as they usher the team onto the field.

Bill Johnston leads both veteran and newly-inducted members in the National Honor Society pledge.

Susannah Cashion keeps an eye on the fans as the cheerleaders rally the spectators in support of the team.

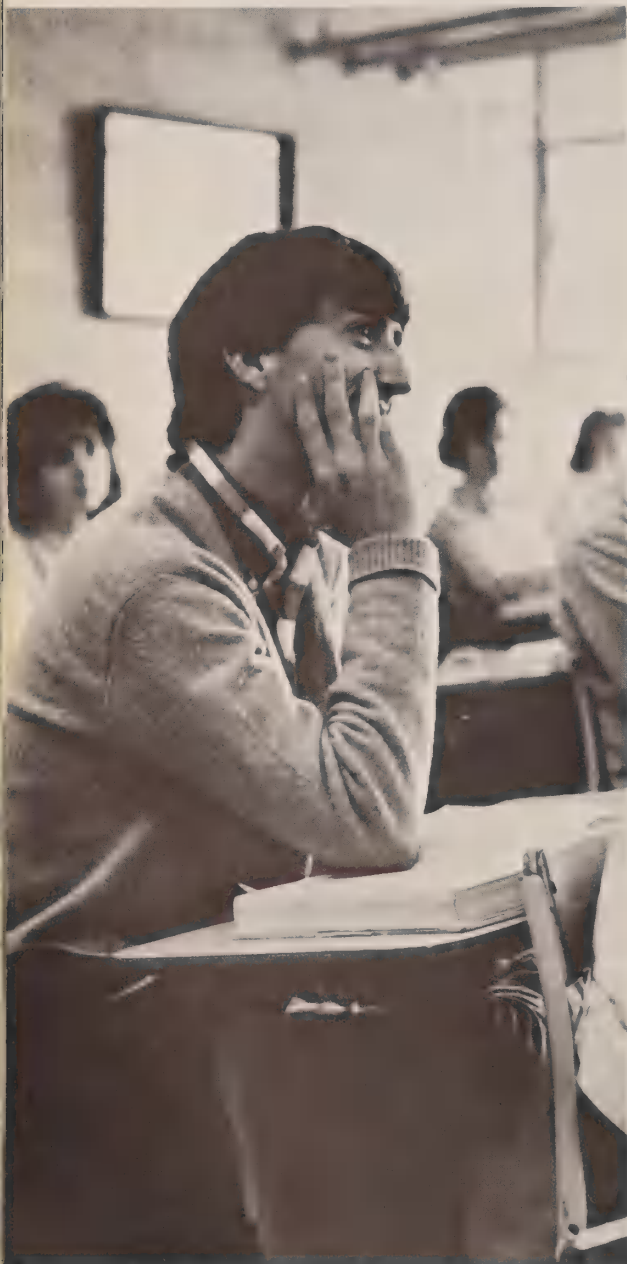

These wrestlers exert every muscle possible in striving to overcome their opponents.

Eddie Bundy and Roy Williamson contend with their rivals for possession of the ball.

"Will the Seniors please rise? With the Seniors leaving first, this assembly is dismissed."

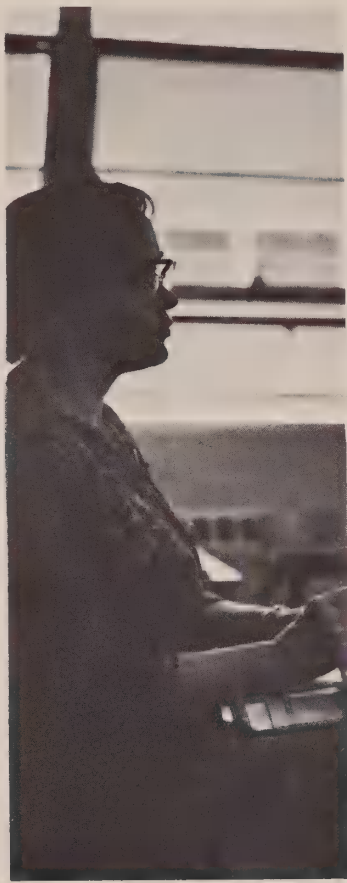

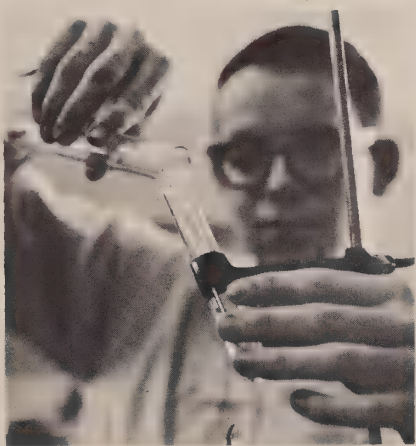

The Beatle influence was a carry-over from '64 into '65, as shown by Gary Hayes.

With the football players on the crest of the bank and the cheerleaders behind them, students received a relief from studies in the form of an outdoor pep rally.

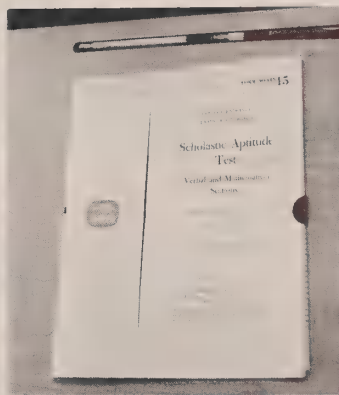

Mickey Allen keeps a close watch on Mrs. Hardister as she guards her in the yearly student-faculty basketball game.

Academics

The clock's hands point to twelve o'clock midnight as the boy crams for an important exam. A girl muses over a book of sonnets or frets over algebra problems. The teacher takes one last look at his notes and stations himself in front of the lectern to await the tardy bell. The flow of academics at Wilkes Central is made up of books, classes, teachers, and students.

MR. J. FLOYD WOODWARD, Superintendent

Arranging classes to make up for days of school lost to snow was one task. Keeping alert for new trends in education and securing the best faculty and plant available on a budget were others. Most predominate, however, was the unending task of bridging the gap, with tact and diplomacy, between school and community.

Mr. J. Floyd Woodward, with the aid of the Board of Education, has accomplished these tasks with tireless devotion in his position as superintendent of North Wilkesboro City Schools. The success of his unselfish efforts in behalf of Wilkes Central continue to aid in the progress toward the best in educational opportunity for our students.

As assistant principal, Mr. Brooks works closely with Dr. Cleetwood to maintain the school's many facets of activity. He takes care of many problems that arise and, by doing so efficiently, betters Wilkes Central.

best educational facilities

Thirteen hundred individuals are to be placed in positions which will develop their educational capacities to the fullest. Fifty faculty members are to be advised and encouraged in their task of bringing knowledge to young minds. These are only two aspects of the problems and tasks of administration. With skill, devotion, and intelligence, Dr. C. C. Cleetwood continues to guide the organization of Wilkes Central.

Grading a student is serious and delicate work, and Mrs. Surratt realizes that fairness to each is of utmost importance.

from a dedicated faculty

Knowledge cannot be absorbed by means of pills or potions, but the skill and devotion the members of the faculty exhibit often borders on the mystic.

Each day they bring a repository of knowledge to the thirteen hundred students who compose the classes of Wilkes Central. The enthusiasm and skill with which they perform even the most routine tasks combine to provide each student with the opportunity to receive the best possible instruction.

In a chemistry lab, an algebra class, or French class, students develop their fullest academic potential under the supervision of these dedicated individuals. The success of their instruction has given Wilkes Central academic standards to be maintained with pride.

Mr. Bussell, our school-time custodian, is a welcome figure to teachers when things are not functioning properly and a familiar face to students who pass him sweeping the halls.

Mrs. Potts, our patient and most efficient secretary, apparently can never boast of a relaxed moment.

One bell heard, one class down; another class to meet, one bell to beat.

Our school service staff

Bill helps Mr. Bussell with the maintenance after school and takes care of many details to ease the work load on both of them.

A thousand or more lunches, ready and piping hot, must be prepared and served to the endless line of students for an hour and a half each day of the school weeks. The long halls must be swept clean of the thousands of muddy or dusty footprints, and light bulbs must be in each switch of every classroom. Someone must answer the phone and record the bank balance for the inner office.

These tasks, and a multitude of others, occupy the members of the cafeteria staff, the custodians, and the office secretary. Their efforts provide the services necessary for the smooth functioning of a day at Wilkes Central.

makes days efficient

Plates are served as students pass in front of the counter for their food.

Because of immaculate conditions and tasty food, students enjoy meeting and eating with friends, even though the line is a heartbreaker.

A smile, and, when necessary, the correct change and sympathetic understanding, greet each student in the lunch line.

Recognition is due to our cooks, the ladies and men who, efficiently and with much care, prepare our meals.

Coach Hoffman enthusiastically instructs his P.E. class in the finer points.

Healthy minds and bodies

Of all the nerve! I put forth a big effort and the ball drops.

Warm-up exercises in the "Y" gym occupy this freshman physical education class.

are achieved in P. E.

"One, two, three, left," chants a class of freshmen girls or boys during warm up exercises in the gym. Girls in white jump suits dart across the court as a group of freshman play a fastpaced game of basketball or speed ball. Boys in blue shorts and grey shirts make several laps around the track field in early spring or test their skills in a game of baseball. Advanced physical education students pursue knowledge beyond the fundamentals of games and aid in freshman P.E. classes.

On alternate days the emphasis switches from physical activity to instruction in the basic structures and functions of the human body. This, combined with the program of physical activity, accomplishes the goal of the health and physical education department—the development of each student's physical and mental fitness potential.

Through co-operation with colleges, a health class gains additional information from a student teacher.

Basketball develops dexterity that is necessary for today's youth.

Tools become precise instruments in the hands of these boys at work on their gun racks.

Sue Sebastian illustrates a basic in home nursing—a well-prepared bed insures a fast recovery.

Practical arts courses

Ag. boys participate in many projects and experiments; they even have a chance to draw landscapes.

Burned hamburger buns and arrangements of spring daffodils or fall chrysanthemums are present in these rooms. Young children laughing and munching crackers for a student audience are also there.

The pride and thrill of accomplishment are felt as the boy sands off a gun stock that he has made himself, or plots a drawing with delicate instruments. Another student finds even deeper satisfaction in surveying a crop planned and grown by himself using modern methods and modern tools.

The thrill of accomplishment is the same whether the student is a girl in home economics, or a boy in industrial arts, mechanical drawing, or agriculture. Skills that provide satisfaction and serve to prepare an individual for maturity are the primary objective of the department of practical arts of Wilkes Central.

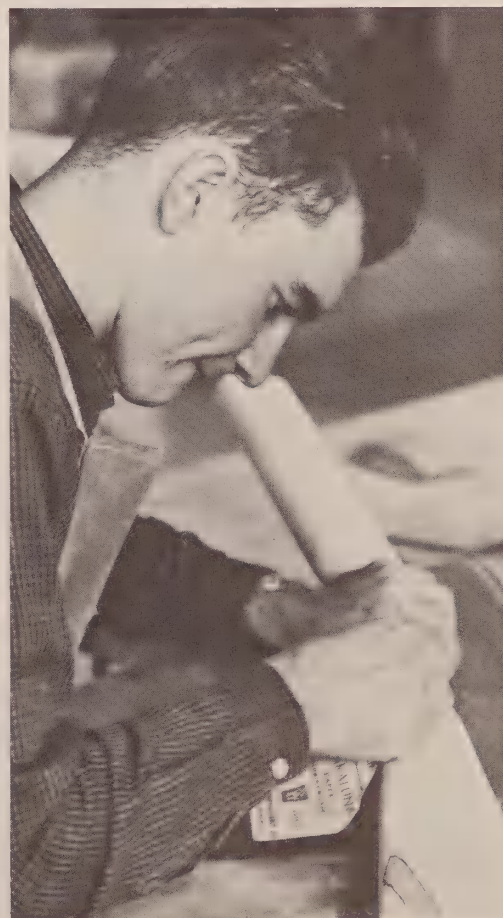

offer career training

David Sprinkle has become adept in using a straight edge, compass, protractor, and other more sensitive instruments in mechanical drawing.

Betty Caudill finds in Home Ec. that knowledge of a sewing machine is both practical and rewarding.

Tommy Shew discovers the pride of accomplishment as he sands a gun stock he has made.

Mr. Roberts, assistant for the first three periods, is an understanding aid to students having difficulty using the library.

A girl listens to a symphony by Beethoven or Bach. A boy strives for excellence in mastering on his flute the notes of a difficult piece of music. An entire group of students sings for a civic organization and faith is restored in the creative powers of the younger generation. The audience is hushed and the gymnasium is darkened before the curtain is drawn on a three-act drama.

The actors and musicians are young. Their efforts often fall short. The fact remains that there are outlets for the best of man's creativity. The objective of the fine arts department of Wilkes Central is to provide these outlets in band, chorus, speech, and dramatics, or library science.

Playing a musical instrument, enacting an emotion-filled scene, working with the best of literature, or singing a beautiful piece of music, are activities designed to provide the opportunity for development.

Latent talents awaken

The library is a place for quiet study into our world for students who take advantage of the environment.

and come alive in fine arts

In her role as librarian Mrs. Brame goes over and above necessity to help anyone who has a problem.

Get off that Beatle rhythm—the beat is one, two, three.

Typing a stencil for the first time definitely presents problems, but with the help of Mr. Furr, everything seems to fall into place.

Hanns Manship and David Foster discover the complexities of the keyboard in this Typing I class.

Practice is a forerunner skill

Fingers dart across the keyboard with ease and assurance in a Typing II class. Down the hall the scene is different as students become orientated to the complex mystery of the typewriter in a Typing I class. The strokes are uneven at first, but as the weeks and months pass skill builds and the complex machine becomes a valuable aid.

The office practice class is filled with the combination hum of student voices and the clack of typewriters or the hum of a duplicating machine running off student directories or forms for the annual staff.

In the shorthand classroom the scene is quieter, but none the less active. Pencils make hurried scribbles against shorthand notebooks. Students learn a language of symbols and sound and grow exceedingly accurate with practice.

These are classrooms associated with the business department at Wilkes Central. The methods and means may differ from room to room but the ultimate goal remains—the preparation of well-trained workers for the expanding demands for skilled labor.

After learning how to use an adding machine, many students would like to take it with them to math class.

in the business department

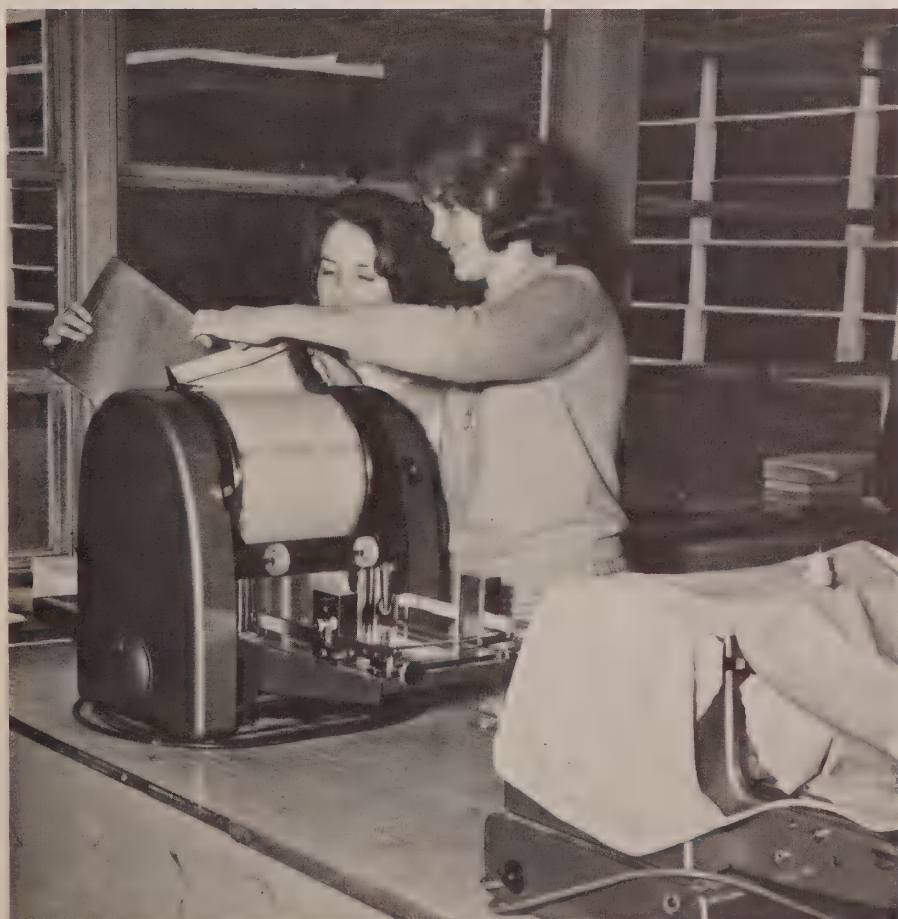

Academic as well as business students realize the need for training in bookkeeping.

Although the curves and figures this shorthand class learns are new and strange, the different language will prove profitable in future years.

Doris Combs and Linda Anderson appreciate the advantages of mimeographing, but the excess ink is another thing.

For students going into a business career, the study of business law is very important.

In third and fourth-year Latin, Mr. Greene urges students to express their own opinions concerning the Romans and their society.

Mr. Greene must be telling one of his stories about Roman civilization.

Foreign languages build

One of the first questions Mrs. Gambill asks her French II class is, "Quel jour est-ce aujourd'hui?" Evidently the young Frenchman knew the answer.

A brief question-and-answer drill period provides French I students with practice in the first elements of conversation.

"Vous parlez, vous écrivez, et vous lisez en français," the French tape may say. A moment later the language students in the classroom repeat the phrase, striving for accuracy in pronunciation or skill in altering person or tense. Along with the inevitable grammar comes a sense of belonging to a world society unhampered by regional boundaries as a student finds himself capable of reading a current magazine from France or an incident from a familiar classic such as Les Misérables in the language of its conception.

At the end of the hall, Latin students study the culture of the Roman people. Clay volcanoes, plastic spoon mosaics, and charcoal sketches are student efforts at creating parts of this culture. From the textbook come excerpts from Caesar, Ovid, or Vergil, each with the clarity and profound philosophy of the Latin civilization.

cultural appreciation

After mastering the basic French rules, Vickie Huffman is now ready to read about the more interesting aspect of French from our library—culture.

In Latin, Bobby Taylor learns grammar, but he also is instructed in the stories of the Roman religion concerning gods such as Atlas.

Even the best of French II students have trouble with translations of their novel, Sans Famille.

Burlie and Virgil Bengé and Carolyn Benton listen to La Marseillaise on the language lab earphones.

Mrs. Vannoy's history has become known for its skits, each of which is colored by originality and humor poked at the old masters of past ages.

In Coach Groce's class students see a flat, insipid world map transformed into the pulsating, alive world of 1965.

Maps of expanding empires ornament the walls. Bulletin boards display ancient dress or explain a concept of history. Students re-enact the forming of the constitution or a lively debate between Jefferson and Hamilton.

The entire economy of the nation is dissected and revised by a group of youthful economists. The results of an upcoming election are predicted and the actual results analyzed with objective eyes.

Life long prejudices are revealed and discussed in an effort to understand how man behaves and why.

These are activities of the social studies department. In civics and world geography, world history, American history, economics, or sociology, Wilkes Central's students become acquainted with the riches of the past and the promise of the future as well-informed, functional members of society.

Social studies bring a

Atoms, molecules, formulas, laws, muscles, organs, and systems relate to the everyday world in the practical applications of the science department of Wilkes Central. In a chemistry lab or a physics class students learn to apply a knowledge of concepts and theories to the problems of modern society.

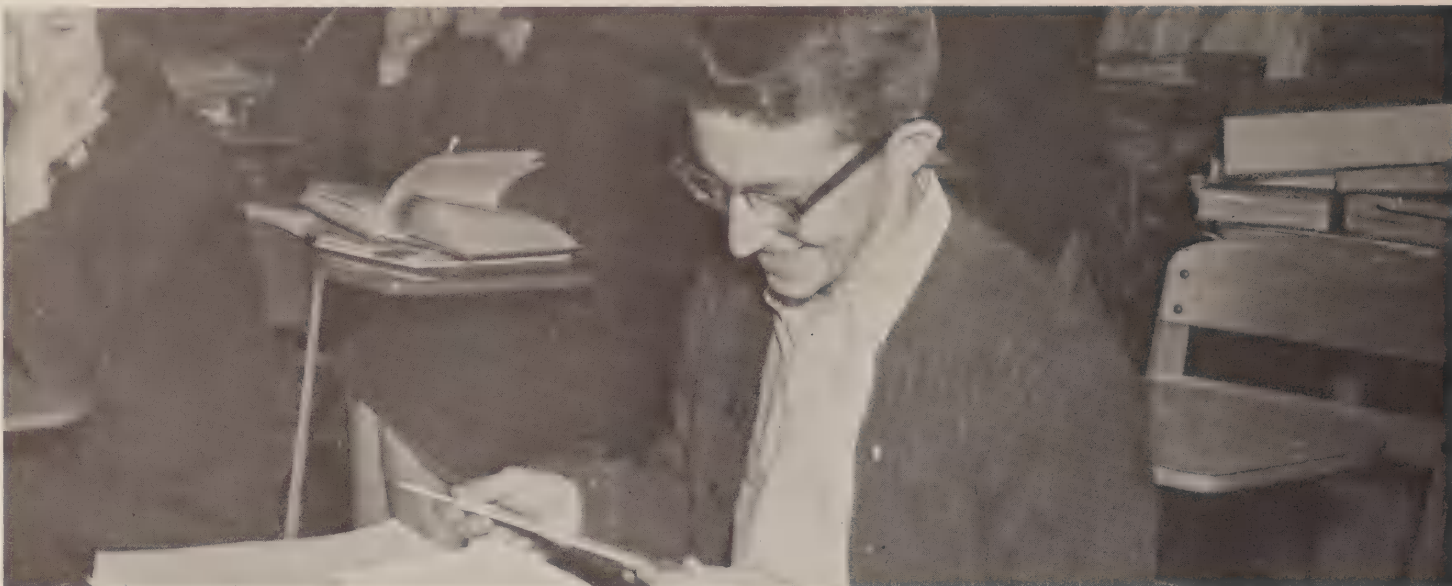

While students conclude their tests and prepare to "pass out," Mr. Carpenter notices a physics problem that requires some head scratching.

Through use of color charts and demonstrations, Mrs. McGrady can more easily explain the minute details to her Advanced Biology class.

Chemistry consists not only of learning facts but also of working problems.

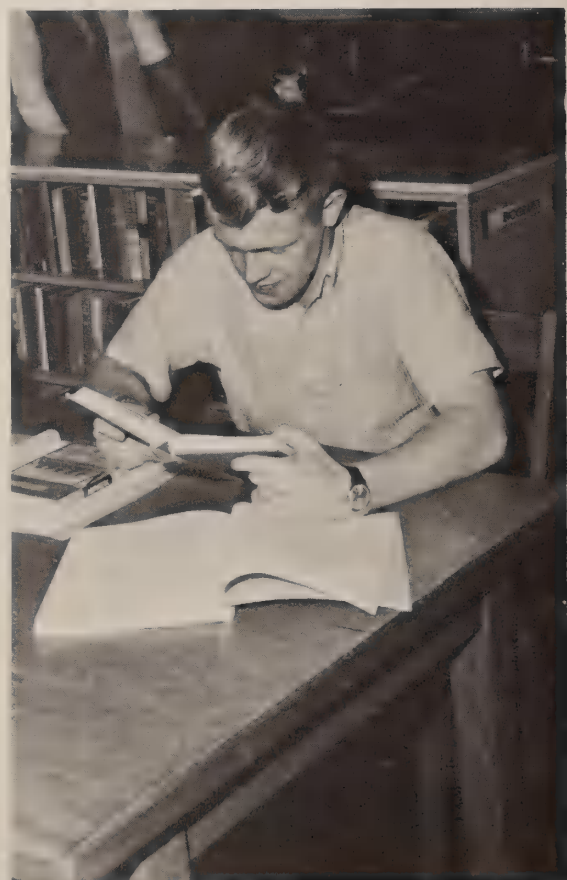

Students learn to use slide rules with skill and ease. This saves both time and work.

Logic is put against

This is a simple equation, class, but there are many, many ways to use it.

Ronald Huffman has just tapped the large resource in the library for help on a troublesome math problem.

The compass rotates in skilled hands and a circle is formed. A line of chalk moves from point to point and a line graph takes form. Columns of numbers with plus and minus symbols form long, wavy lines on a sheet of homework.

Mathematics—the ancient art and test of man's patience, intellect, and curiosity—is being taught in the classrooms of Wilkes Central.

Quadratic equations or Euclid's laws offer challenges. Compasses, protractors, and slide rules emerge as tools in the hands of skilled students, rather than toys.

Problems and concepts develop skill and reasoning ability as students progress from the basics of general mathematics courses to the complexities of algebra and geometry. The end result is skilled and alert students armed with the ability to probe and solve the problems of everyday life.

various problems in math

Having discovered a contradiction in answers, Mr. Alexander officially declares the answer book wrong.

Graphing, one of math's most practical applications, enables students to see relationships clearly.

There is no better way for a freshman to build self-confidence than to speak before his peers.

Seniors have discovered that world literature requires a great deal of initiative on assignments.

Self-expression is developed

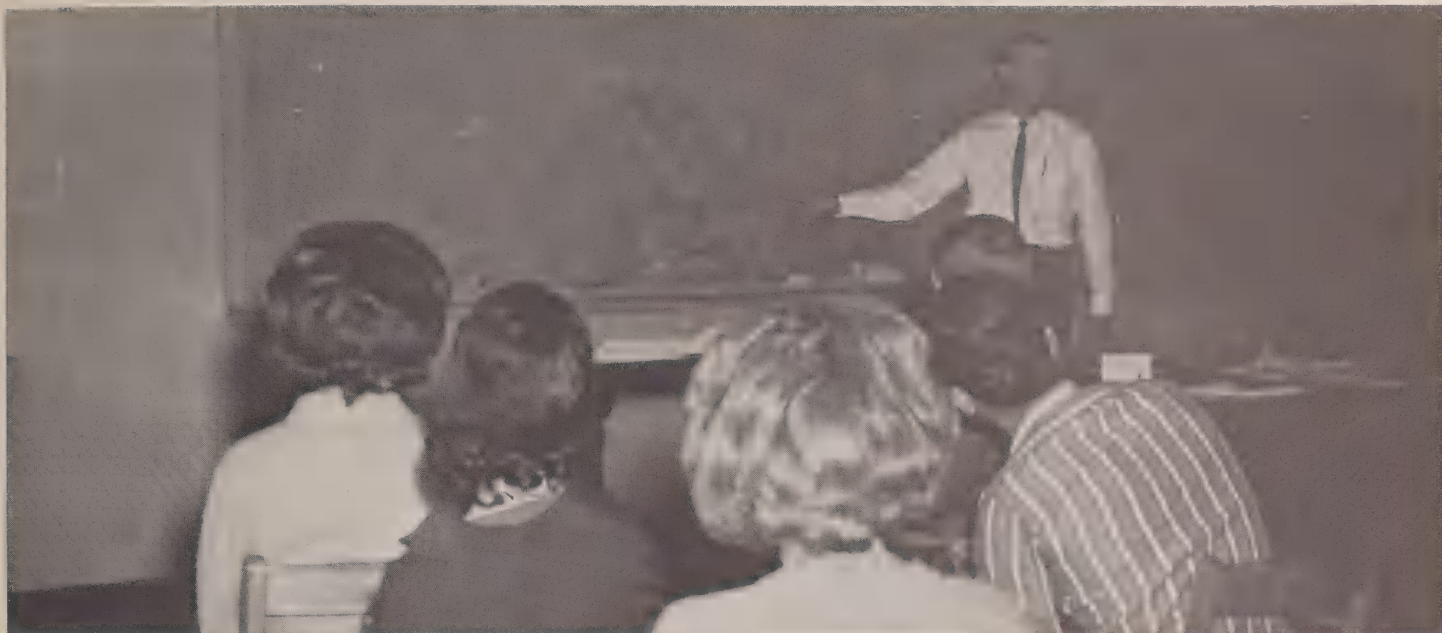

"Reading maketh a full man; conference a ready man; and writing an exact man," was Sir Francis Bacon's definition of the qualities necessary for the making of a scholar.

A girl reads Silas Marner and discovers much of human nature. A boy delivers a talk on prejudice in a speech class and forms a philosophy he is willing to defend. The Advanced Composition classroom is silent as students attempt to express concisely in their own words the ideas they have gleaned from reading Tolstoy or Rousseau.

Knowledge and skill in reading, speaking, and writing are the goal of the English department. The scholars trained in this department are capable of self-expression in any of the three media.

In order to use English correctly, a student must practice it. Thus, an oral test is in order.

The composition of a sentence and parts of speech seem clearer when diagrammed.

In speech and dramatics Mr. Mayes tries to indicate that a good performer gives his whole self to the role.

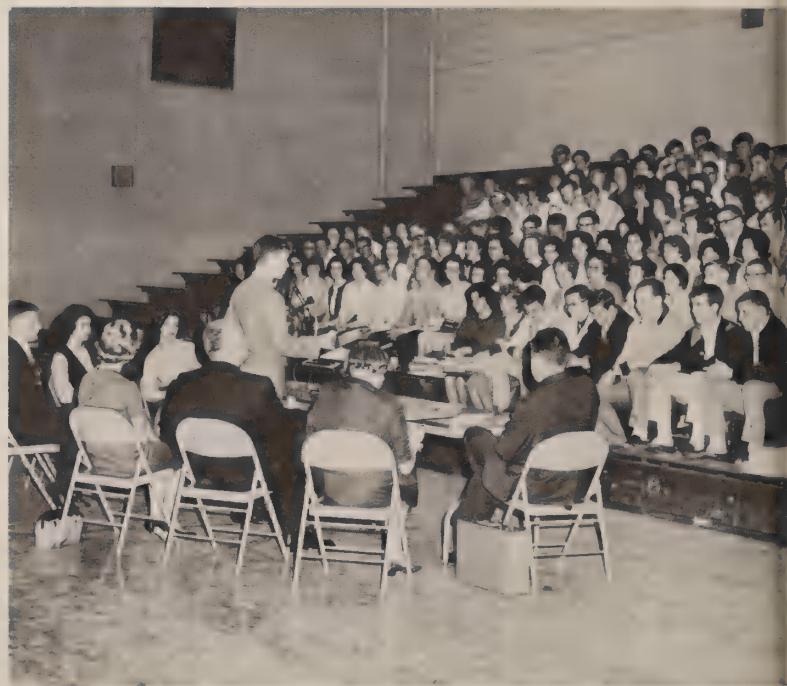

Those fulfilling the responsibility of officers of the Class of 1965 are: Jan Forehand, treasurer; Margaret Morrow, secretary; James Wiles, vice-president; Tony Wingler, president.

Senior Class

The days are full and busy. They fly past with the speed of thought. There are club meetings piled upon club meetings. So many things to do. An issue of the Aquila must be completed before next week—only four days to go. The Homecoming parade must have a float from each club. There are extra meetings. Somewhere along the way, that English paper has to be written, time must be found for that French left undone last week.

The flurry of college applications keeps everyone in a whirl for weeks. Grades must come second, yet must be maintained. Find time—ah, Time. Where does it all go?

Now and then a quiet moment comes. You stop for breath and, gazing down the silent expanse of corridor lit by longslanted rays of sunlight, you think, "This is the last year. What now? Where then? 'a leg, a stone, a door . . .'" You doubt for only a moment, and then go on to the next, and the next—to meet the challenge of being a Senior.

Ordering graduation invitations and calling cards was only one item on the agenda for the senior class meeting.

Jan Forehand and Danny Jones were voted MOST POPULAR as a result of their charm and personality under all circumstances.

The Junior class officers for the year were Bill Thomas, president; Paul Caudill, treasurer; Mike Meade, vice-president; Joyce Stout, secretary.

Junior Class

A girl read one of Emily Dickinson's jewels of thought and better understood human emotion. A boy struggled through Herman Melville's Moby Dick and wondered about the conflict between good and evil, God and man. Chemistry students concocted strange compounds, and geometry students mused over calculations.

Lines of nervous students waited to be measured for class rings. Weary committee members discussed plan after plan for a float to enter in the homecoming parade. Equally weary students rushed to bring the selected plan to reality by parade time.

Rooms were silent as new members were inducted into the Green Key Club, Future Teachers, and Tri-Hi-

Y. Candidates for student council offices distributed campaign propaganda and waited nervously on stage before addressing the student body with spirited campaign speeches. After the storm of election, winners and losers alike received congratulations for the effort and ingenuity of the campaign.

These students were members of the junior class. During the year their status as upper classmen brought them new responsibilities and new pleasures. Involved in every phase of life at Wilkes Central, they excelled in athletics, academics, and extra-curricular activities. The members of the class of 1966 proved themselves leaders in the finest Wilkes Central tradition.

Vernon Smith and Gary Hayes are caught as they, along with many other juniors, help in the Student Council Candy Sale.

Sophomore Class

A green-skirted varsity cheerleader hurried by with a sheaf of football programs to be sold on the night of the most exciting football game of the season. Hushed voices conjugated a French verb or declined a Latin noun. Biology students peered into a sea of one-celled organisms through the miracle of the microscope. An English II class became acquainted with the characters of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar. World history students plotted the course of the Crusades on a map of the world. A typing student fumbled with a margin that refused to be set.

Wilkes Central's sophomores were writing their chapter in the story of Wilkes Central. At ball games, at assemblies, at class meetings, or at the Sophomore Hop, each member of the class of 1967 utilized the utmost of his talents, energy and school spirit. Aching backs and numb brains were more than compensated for as sophomores gained knowledge and pleasant memories of their second year at Wilkes Central.

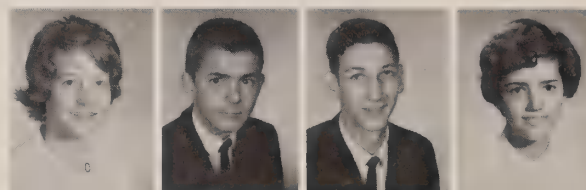

Mrs. Martin urges sophomores to look beyond the surface and to find English II interesting.

These class officers capably led the Sophomore class through a successful year: Susan Kerbaugh, secretary; Mark Dalrymple, vice-president; Maxine Brock, treasurer; John Swofford, president.

The officers chosen by the freshman class are Larry Hall, president; Karen Hayes, treasurer; Ann Spencer, secretary; Mike Inscore, vice-president.

Freshman Class

They stand on the threshold of a new life—a grand adventure, an exercise for the mind and body and soul. They watch the hordes of unknown, wise-looking students rush by—all going somewhere. Where? They feel a little lost, a little dumb; but they also feel the challenge, the life of Wilkes Central. In they plunge, right up to their necks in the work, the play, the learning and yearning that is Central. The first report card is a great occasion, as is the first honest-to-goodness Homecoming game. Friday assembly is a perplexing affair, but they learn to look forward to skipping a few minutes of class.

How did those upperclassmen ever get so far? How do they get out of class when we cannot?

They learn to beat their way to the lunchroom; and, once there, they stick doggedly to the barely crawling "long gray line." They learn rapidly: By Christmas you can hardly tell a freshman from a battle-hardened student at W.C.

Class floats and beauties added to the excitement of their first real Homecoming.

Freshman girls, Sharon Billings and Karen Hayes, are two of many who daily enjoy the food from the multi-purpose room.

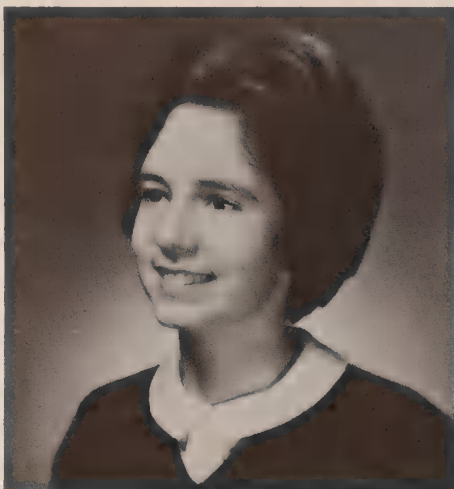

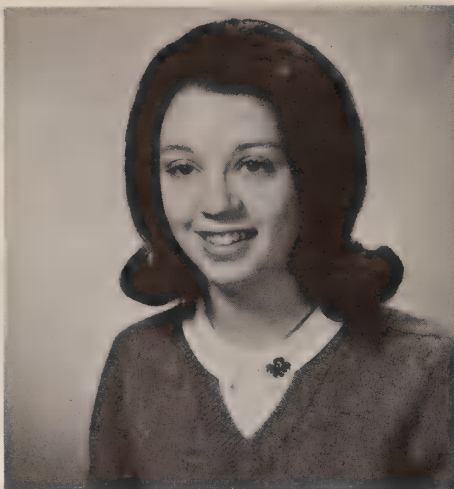

Activities

Student Council members with boxes of Halloween candy to sell, Green Key Club ribbons on sale in the M. P. room, dignity of flickering candles at the National Honor Society induction ceremony, or F.T.A. members conducting an afternoon study hall—all are facets of the whirl of activities.

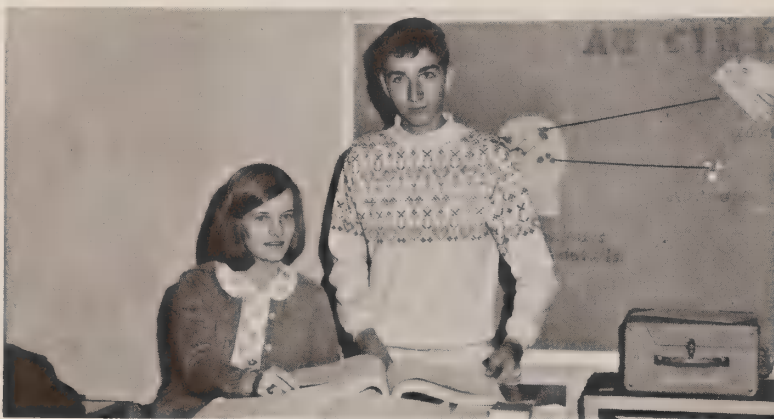

CAROLYN GWYN—Editor

GAIL DUNCAN—Co-Business Manager

ELIZABETH FOSTER—Co-Business Manager

Joyce Stout, Associate Business Manager, and William Mathis, Associate Editor, must work hard this year to learn all the things that are essential to producing a good yearbook.

Through the patience and guidance shown by Mrs. Pauline Woodward, Green and Gold advisor, the staff was able to create a yearbook worthy of their efforts.

Green and Gold

The Green and Gold staff was busier than ever this year because school activities and areas which must be covered at Wilkes Central have grown considerably during the past few years. The staff has gladly spent more time and energy in an effort to make this year's Green and Gold the best yet. Members have worked diligently perfecting layouts, providing and arranging pictures, writing copy, and meeting deadlines. The thrill of working together and the satisfaction that each staff member experienced at the successful completion of his section of the yearbook far outweighed the weariness of many hours of toil. Each member of the staff has spent a profitable year learning the procedure involved in preparing a good yearbook.

Mr. Switzer and David Foster, Green and Gold photographers, were seen at many student gatherings in search of action shots representative of school activities.

Through preparing layouts, writing and proof-reading copy and captions, and placing and identifying pictures, these girls—Beth Foster, Linda Wood, Carol Brown, Rudyne Call, Sylvia Carrigan, Clara Ray, and Brenda Rhodes—find that it is difficult to know everyone at Wilkes Central.

Roger Wright, Margaret Switzer, chairman, Janet Bumgarner, and Nancy Brewer find that they must work steadily on the copy and identifications in order to meet the deadline for the activities section.

Susie Pardue, Martha Smithey, Billie Tharpe, and Kaye Reynolds study annuals from various schools to gain new ideas for the enlarged opening section.

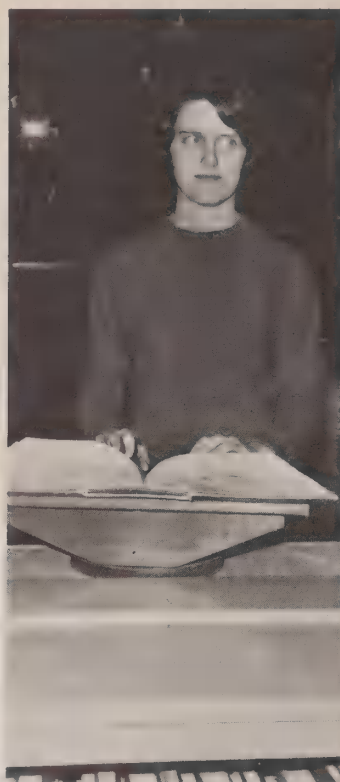

The sports committee, Lucinda Cleetwood, Paul Southwell, Lynn Walker, chairman, and Elizabeth McElwee, look forward to a successful athletic year as they plan the layout for the sports section of the Green and Gold.

Serving as president of the Student Council, Randy Cooke must represent the student body at all times and perform all duties pertaining to the office of president.

As vice-president of the Student Council, Danny Jones presides at all meetings of the Inter-Club Council and acts as mediator between the two councils.

Nelda Morgan, secretary, checks attendance at all meetings, writes the minutes of all meetings and submits a copy to the Student Council for approval.

Treasurer Jerry Brookshire handles all Student Council and Student Body funds. Jerry must keep an accurate record of all finances.

Student Council

The Student Council had an extremely active year, as shown by the numerous projects and activities it carried out successfully. The most important function of the Student Council was keeping the students informed on problems arising in the council meetings and the solutions to these problems. The homeroom representatives reported to their homerooms the business of the meetings, thus serving as a link between the students and the Student Council.

As a result of the highly successful magazine sales, the Student Council was able to undertake a large major project—the landscaping of the athletic field. As a minor project, a series of entertaining paid assemblies was approved.

The Student Council sponsored the following projects during the Christmas season: collecting voluntary contributions to the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library Fund; and monetary gift for the two full-time custodians; and the Christmas Cheer project, which provided food for two needy families.

The Student Council sponsored two all-school dances—one at Christmas and the other at Valentine's. The Homecoming activities were a project of the Student Council, also. Their highly successful Student-Faculty basketball game was perhaps their most profitable and entertaining undertaking for the year. A team of non-varsity players challenged the skill and wit of a group of faculty players. However, with the aid of the referees and score-keepers, the faculty attained a victory.

Students and teachers alike seem to pause a moment and gaze as Dr. Cleetwood sinks another one during play at the annual Student-Faculty game.

National Honor Society

Although the membership of the National Honor Society plunged from the thirty members of last year to the energetic fifteen of this year due to graduation, the Society has driven with a full head of steam under the capable leadership of its advisors, Miss June Foster and Mr. Don Roberts. This group entered a float for the first time in the homecoming parade. Members also manned voting places during the school bond election and again during the presidential election, distributing pamphlets which urged citizens to vote. In such work as this, the Society continued all year. Although the member had to maintain an 85 percent average in his studies, display outstanding character, and be a leader in the school, the resources of the club were always available in service for both school and community.

The assembly in October emphasizing good grooming was sponsored by the Guidance Department and presented by the Green Key Club. Here Jerry Brookshire and Nancy Church model formal evening wear.

Green Key Club

The Green Key Club is composed of thirty outstanding juniors and seniors who are leaders in constructive school activities. They are ever "ready, willing, and able" to give valuable service to their school. Membership in this club gives the active student even more opportunities to work for Wilkes Central. Beginning active service with the opening of football season, Key Club members presided at entrances during all games, taking admissions and stamping hands. They worked during Junior Varsity football games, all basketball games and wrestling matches, presented a fashion show and sold Wilkes Central booster ribbons.

Hi-Y

As a Christian club, Hi-Y stands as the rallying standard for those boys who are sincere about living their lives on a high plane of moral and social values. The purpose of this club is to create, maintain, and extend high standards of Christian character. The activities conducted by the members serve as vehicles in aiding its members to achieve their purpose. The Hi-Y has but one purpose, and all interpretations of this purpose are within the framework of the purpose and principles of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Hi-Y Officers are: John Jacumin, sergeant-at-arms; Bucko Buchan, vice-president; Benny Bundy, treasurer; James Wiles, president; Jim Gregory, chaplain; Bill Johnston, secretary.

Tri-Hi-Y

"To create, maintain, and extend . . ." begins the Tri-Hi-Y purpose and focuses the activities of the club. The Tri-Hi-Y, being a service club, alternated with the Hi-Y and the Kappa and Sigma clubs in sponsoring dances after the home football games. During Thanksgiving the club made fruit baskets for local rest homes. A giant Eagle ball player was the center of attention on the Tri-Hi-Y's float in the Homecoming Parade. The "Powder-Puff" football game brought for the Tri-Hi-Y not only the third consecutive year without a loss, but also money for a generous world service donation.

Sigma Chi Tri-Hi-Y

As a Christian club, Sigma Chi Tri-Hi-Y stands as the rallying standard for those freshmen and sophomore girls who are sincere about living their lives on a high plane of moral and social values, and who are consistent with the motto of clean speech, clean mind, and clean body. This year the Sigma Chi Tri-Hi-Y members' aim is to explore and more clearly define this purpose. During the year 1964-65, Sigma carried out several projects to raise money and to provide plenty of fun for all of the members and the school. Working along with Kappa Tri-Hi-Y, the club was able to make these projects very successful.

Officers of the Sigma Chi are, SEATED: Diane Stone, sergeant-at-arms; Marcelle Morgan, vice-president; Clara Ray, president. STANDING: Laura Day, chaplain; Marie Wingler, treasurer; Betty Broome, secretary.

Kappa Tri-Hi-Y officers are: Beth Duncan, vice-president; Susan Church, secretary; Susan Kerbaugh, president; Ann Spencer, chaplain; Joan Brewer, treasurer.

Kappa Tri-Hi-Y

The Kappa Tri-Hi-Y's regular Monday night meetings are held to transact necessary business, fortify their high purpose through conference and Bible study, to strengthen the ties of friendship that bind them together, and to make the Kappa Tri-Hi-Y Club and themselves individually of greater service to their fellows. In the year 1964-65, Kappa Tri-Hi-Y worked jointly with Sigma Tri-Hi-Y in many of the clubs' activities. All the members and adult leaders were inspired with the candle light rededication service, and all of the girls seemed to get a great sense of self fulfillment when the two clubs adopted a grandmother. Yes, the year 1964-65 certainly was a rewarding one for the Kappa Tri-Hi-Y.

Mr. Myers, Band Director, directs the band as they begin the game with the National Anthem.

Wilkes Central High School Band

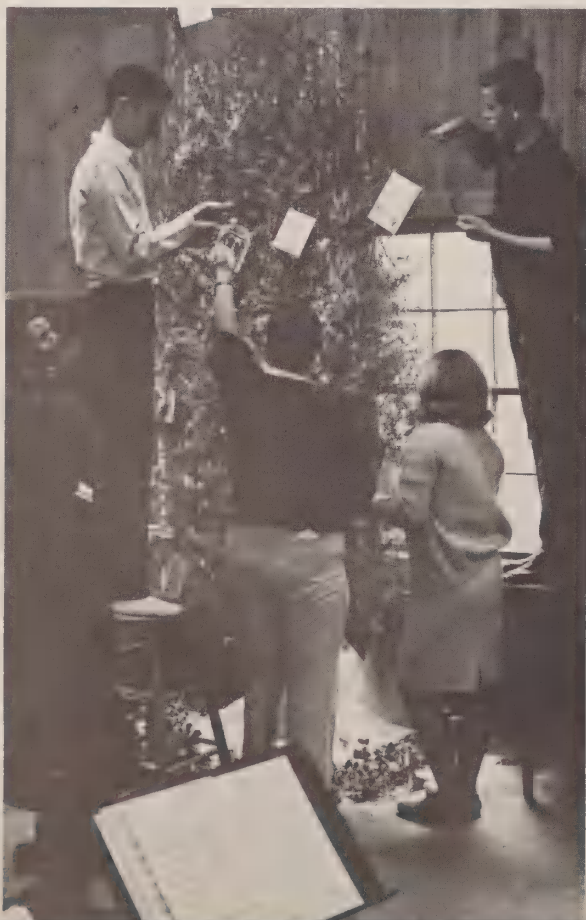

A tap on the podium, instruments raised, a wave of the conductor's baton, and the concert begins. These are the motions characteristic of every band, but to Wilkes Central students they are special because they belong to our band.

Some students expressed an uncertain opinion of the band's performances at the beginning of the school year. This, however, was quickly and gladly turned off as the year and the band progressed together. The band displayed outstanding skill on the field and in parade marching. There were contented sighs when the band marched out onto the field with a good solid all-American sound which represented the trilogy of a winning team, school, and band. Judging from past years, everyone could tell while listening to such performances and watching the intricate formations that the band members had put more "oomph" into it—an extra punch of work.

This work paid off in enormous rewards, and a sense of pride was instilled in each who heard. Another bid came for the Mooresville Christmas Parade. A Christmas concert was presented, introducing effectively the Yuletide. The Homecoming Parade and Memorial Park boomed victories to the old and familiar "Fight" song. The annual trip for the State Band Contest offered a sense of achievement to those who participated.

Still, with all this improvement, Mr. Myers, our hard-working band director, pushed with even a greater force. There were hours of practice and drill; new music was learned and old music stepped up with the pace of Wilkes Central. To deserving members a "hats off" and a "big boom on the bass drum" to show Wilkes Central's appreciation.

Decorating a Christmas tree to brighten up the band room are Gene Smith, Marie Cashion, Jimmy Billings, Donald Winters, Patty Hayes, and Doug Walters.

The Majorettes lead the band through their half-time routine.

The Band Council—Sherry Cox, Wanda Hinchler, Mike Morrison, Debby Liles, Elizabeth Tripplet, Jerry Michael, Allen Broach, Mickey Allen, Conal Shaw, Jenny Melville, Donald Winters, Ralph Taylor, and Millicent Souther—assist in planning band activities and trips.

As drum major, Allen Broach must step high as he practices his routine for the marching show.

Majorettes Jenny Melville, Abbie Steeleman, Teresa Sale, Debby Liles, and Sherry Cox assume a familiar stance as the band plays the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Choruses

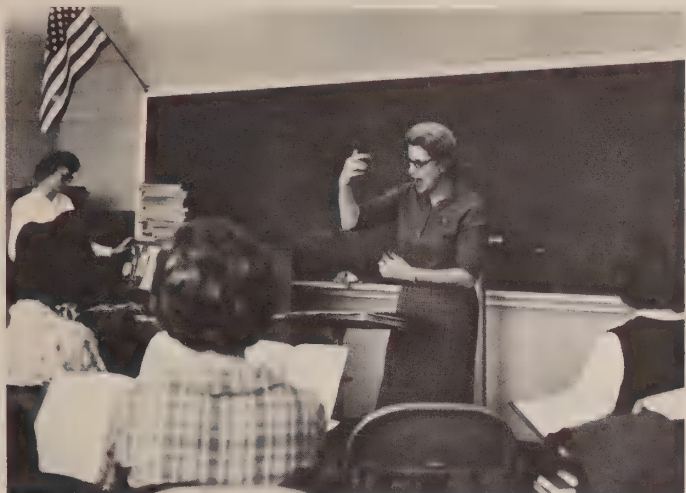

Talent, like all worthwhile things, must be nourished. During first and second periods, members of the two choruses cultivate existing talent and pursue interests in music. Discussions by Miss Clements, choral instructor, acquaint members with musical instruments and their use. Practice sessions provide the poise and skill which have made Wilkes Central choruses in demand for special programs for schools, churches, and civic groups.

In the fall, members of the first period girls' chorus performed for the North Wilkesboro Woman's Club and were well received. Members of both choruses attended choral clinics and continued to give inspiring musical programs during the spring months. Both choruses were instrumental in bringing "the sound of music" from Room 50 at Wilkes Central to all of Wilkes County.

Under the able direction of Miss Clements, the chorus has sung itself through a musical year. Miss Clements puts much time and effort into her classroom teaching to make music an important value in the life of each student.

Wilkes Central's choruses, this year as active as ever, have presented musical programs for civic groups, churches, and school assemblies.

The Advanced Chorus is composed of forty-four students with above average interest and talent in music. Early last spring try-outs were held and class time allotted for the "hour of music" during third period.

Miss Clements advises, instructs, and encourages the members of the class as they study various types of musical arrangements.

This year the Advanced Chorus, sponsored by the Musical Arts Club, presented an enthusiastically received Christmas program at the Wilkesboro Baptist Church. Later in the year members competed at the state choral contest. Eight talented students were chosen to represent the group at the Mars Hill Choral Clinic in February.

Members of the Advanced Chorus are, FIRST ROW: Brenda Joines, Linda Gentle, Carol Elledge, Lynn Welborn, Jerry Smith, William Ellis, Loutricia Mathis, Rebecca Thompson, Suzie Transeau, Brenda Myers. Highlighters

The Highlighters is a group of students who are interested in singing, but have no time during the school day when they can practice together. They began the year by bringing in new members. The lights of Room 50 have been seen burning at many odd hours because of their practice sessions.

They have presented many well-received programs to the school and to local civic clubs and were an especially popular group at Christmas. Their wide variety of music has made them a well-loved group. Because of the contributions of interested civic clubs, they were able to buy stunning new blazers with an insignia on the pocket which they designed themselves.

In order that they might present the many musical programs included in their schedule, the Highlighters spent much time in after-school practice.

Miss Clements assumes a familiar stance as she directs the Highlighters. She has made this group more aware of the beauty of good music.

Bill Johnston, William Ellis, Beth Norman, Kendall Marlow. THIRD ROW: David Foster, Jim Gregory, Creg Anderson, Jim Priestler, Jerry Brookshire, Steve Fletcher.

Chess Club

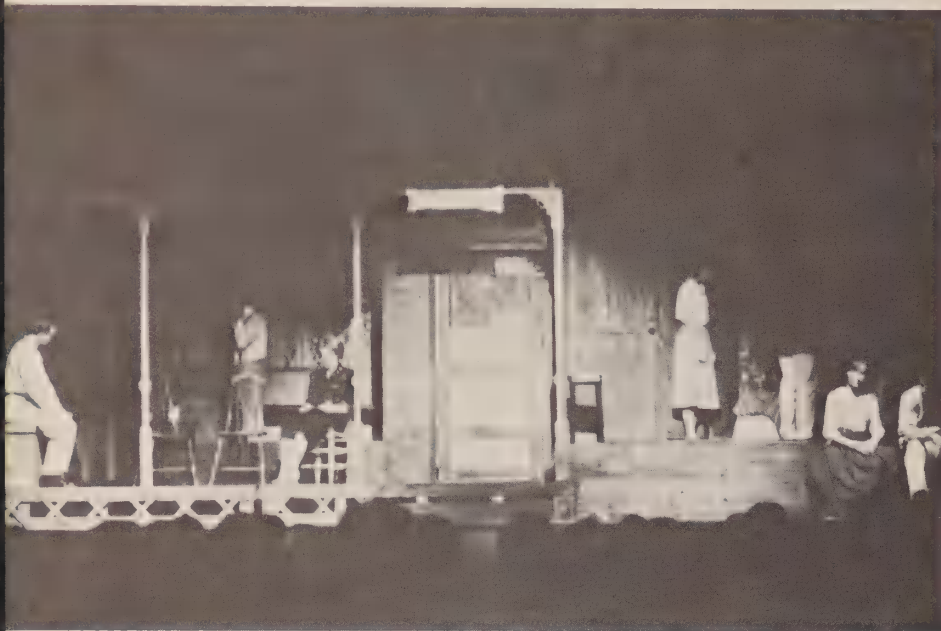

A deep sense of concentration and reasoning is only one of the many requirements of Chess Club members. Chess is not only a test of one's skill, but also a test of mental ability under great pressure. Members of the recently organized Chess Club, endowed with these attributes, are capable not only of deep thought, but also of displaying good sportsmanship in the chess games. Our school is proud of these boys who are venturing beyond the accepted range of mental activity for young people of their age.

Debating Team

Not everyone possesses the ability to express his ideas clearly and effectively, but the members of the Wilkes Central Debate Club are proving that they are becoming very skilled at doing just that. Having been organized just this year, the Debate Club has Mr. Mayes and Mrs. P. Martin as their capable advisors. The members of the club have received valuable experience from expressing their ideas concisely before a large group. The school supports the debaters in all of their endeavors and has provided a section of reserved books in the library that are available only to the debaters, to help them in their research. We are very proud to have these people who are interested in the art of effective communication.

Debaters are, FIRST ROW: Christine Call, Carol Joines, Susan Whittington, Peggy Pennell, Joyce Joines. SECOND ROW: Tony Baldwin, Johnny Gilreath, William Mathis, Vernon Smith, Stephan Tashiro.

In a scene from the Playmakers' production, Look Homeward Angel, the cast seems overshadowed by their ominous fate as Ben is dying.

Aquila Staff

Newspaper margins of twenty-six spaces, sports clippings and rushed typists are all a part of the first period advanced composition class at work on the latest issue of the school newspaper, the AQUILA.

The AQUILA provides students and faculty alike with news of sports, club activities, scholastic honors, features, and humor on a high level. Each of the four English classes is responsible for submitting the material for one issue of the paper. The twenty-two members of the advanced composition class act as editors of the paper, selecting the best of the material submitted. Under the supervision of Mr. Greene, faculty advisor, the copy is made ready for publication and the layout drawn by other members of the class.

The mimeograph played an important part in the production of a fine paper. Mr. Greene looks on as Jim Ford, Tommy Wolfe, Bucko Buchan, and James Wiles run off copies.

Future Homemakers of America

"Wouldn't you like a cookbook? They're only $2.95," was a familiar cry of the Future Homemakers. This, however, was just one of the many activities of the club this year. Under the capable leadership of Mrs. Caudill and Mrs. Gilreath, the girls had the opportunity to become experts in all household skills. One of the most enjoyable functions of the year was the Mother-Daughter Banquet which was prepared by the members of the club. The Wilkes Central club was again well represented at the state F.H.A. Convention, which gave each member many new and interesting ideas.

The cookbook sale and homecoming float were great successes, making this year's Future Homemaker's Club one of the most active clubs at Wilkes Central.

Future Business Leaders of America

The Future Business Leaders of America is a national organization of students who plan a career in the business world. The Wilkes Central Chapter compiled and published a student directory, which has been and will be extremely useful to the entire student body.

At the convention in Durham last year, Allen Broach was elected President of North Carolina State F.B.L.A. Club. Our local club took top places in many events. The club has even greater expectations for this year's convention.

Officers of the Future Business Leaders are caught as they leave for the State Convention. They are Doris Combs, treasurer; Richard Huie, president; Rebecca Reavis, parliamentarian; Allen Broach, state president; Elmer Parlier, reporter; Ruth Wyatt, historian; and Bennie Anderson, vice-president.

The mimeograph machine played an important part in the F.B.L.A.'s production of a Student Directory.

Entertainment for the Sadie Hawkins Dance, November 21, was provided by Roy Williamson, Lee Foster, Creg Anderson, Jim Lowe, Jerry Brookshire, and Syd Spainhour.

Future Teachers

Preparation for careers in education is the major goal of the Wilkes Central chapter of Future Teachers of America. Under the capable guidance of Mrs. Belva Vannoy, panelist on the state advisory committee for F.T.A. clubs, members pursue their interests in education.

Members worked together to build the green and gold F.T.A. "Bandwagon" which won second place in the homecoming parade, and to prepare for the state F.T.A. convention. This year's convention, held on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro on November 14, featured members from the Wilkes Central chapter, along with Mrs. Vannoy, as guest panelists.

After a spirited announcement from Student Council president, Randy Cooke, Sadie Hawkins Twirp Week began. The climax of this week of "man trapping" was the second annual Sadie Hawkins Day Dance sponsored by the F.T.A. as a special school service project.

April was again the month in which F.T.A. members honored the faculty of Wilkes Central. Special favors, treats, and honors were bestowed on faculty members on each day of the month as a tribute for the many months of service students receive from teachers.

Health Careers

The Wilkes Central Health Careers Club is an organization of students interested in the various careers in medicine. The club, formerly the Future Nurses of America, is now affiliated with the North Carolina Health Careers Club, of which Gail Duncan was elected treasurer at the Congress held in Winston-Salem last February.

Several members attended the District Convention in Winston-Salem in December and three delegates were present for the Congress held in Charlotte in February.

As their project, members collected old hose and buttons to be used by patients in the Black Mountain Hospital in making stuffed toys.

Office Practice

The members of the office practice staff are often seen making their way through the halls and across the walks of Wilkes Central. It is generally known that these students deliver messages and summon students to conferences in Dr. Cleetwood's and Miss Pearson's offices. Their many other duties include collecting absence slips, typing and filing reports, delivering bulletins, answering the office telephone, and presiding over the check-out register during classes. The services rendered by these volunteers are invaluable to each student and faculty member at Wilkes Central.

Science Math Club

With a year of experience under its belt, the Science-Math Club opened this school season with renewed vigor. The members of the club extended an invitation to all students who wished to join them as they delved into the vast resources of the science and math fields. Through informative discussions and imaginative minds, the club was again able to sponsor a successful school science fair in which students' exhibits were displayed. How the members anticipated field trips which shed new lights into the importance of choosing a career in the area of science or math!

Future Farmers

The Future Farmers of America is an organization built upon the foundations of leadership, co-operation, service, and improved agriculture. Through the F.F.A. Foundation, awards are offered to stimulate increased effort by students. Awards are given in such fields as soil and water management, livestock farming, dairy farming, and farm forestry.

The Wilkes Central chapter is affiliated with both national organization and the North Carolina association of the Future Farmers of America. The chapter is active in contests designed to improve the members' ability in beef and dairy cattle judging, land judging, public speaking, as well as parliamentary practice. The organization is entirely self-supporting.

Showing interest in one of the many F.F.A. projects are Olin Dillard, Dennis Call, and Dale Curry.

The F.F.A. boys enjoy an evening of fun and food. The club had many such get-togethers.

Librarians

The library, a very important aid to learning and research, requires many hours of work and many people to keep its complete mechanism in working order. The librarians work with Mrs. Brame and Mr. Roberts in carrying out this duty. They learn how books are processed and classified. They also learn to keep a close record of books which are checked out. The Dewey Decimal System is the foundation for the classification of books and their arrangement on the shelves. The librarians are required to have a working knowledge of this arrangement.

Bus Drivers

Icy roads, rain, and noisy buses have all offered quite a challenge to our bus drivers this year. Despite all these adverse conditions, our drivers have used good judgement and common sense in handling resulting problems in such a manner that makes all Wilkes Central students proud of their leadership. In highway safety and courtesy to other drivers, they have established an enviable record during the year.

Athletics

Pretty girls on the field at half-time on the night of the homecoming game, the tense excitement as the seconds tick by in the last period of a wrestling match, the long foul ball that eludes the baseball player's glove—all are a part of athletics at Wilkes Central.

Varsity Football

The mighty Eagles completed another memorable season! Each game from Taylorsville to Valdese, held an excitement, a memory, a story, that was not duplicated in any other game. Victories, dances, honors, pain, losses, crowds, cheerleaders, coaches, players, unity, faith, and spirit were part of Central's football season this year. We were not able to fight our way through the matches without defeat, but when the mighty Eagles were conquered they held their heads high and the true Central spirit shone through.

Even though we did not quite reach the end of the rainbow this year, our Eagles accomplished a great deal. Throughout our conference and the state, our team is recognized as one that displays true sportsmanship. Our first defeat in two years was handed to us about midway through the season—when our Eagles accepted this defeat with the same Eagle sportsmanship that won so many of our past games, they won one of the hardest battles they have had to face in a great many years.

Wilkes Central maintained a high seat among the "top" football teams in our conference by clinching second place. We were well represented in many activities associated with football: we had an outstanding lineman Randy Cooke, who participated in the Shrine Bowl; our team had several well-qualified players in the annual East-West All-Star game; and we were well represented with all-conference players as we had the continued interest and support of the school and community.

The coaching skill of Central's head coach, Marvin Hoffman, is evident in the persistence and team spirit of his players.

Line coach Jack Branch teaches our linemen to play clean, hard-hitting football.

Backfield coach W. A. Groce has shown his coaching skill by developing new offensive and defensive football plays.

Taylorsville (20-6) It was Wilkes Central's defense that captured this victory. Cooper's fumble recovery set up a touchdown pass from Brookshire to Jones. Bundy's interception of a Taylorsville pass set up an end sweep play, and Sprinkle scored on a fumble recovery, rambling 32 yards.

Marion (6-0) Meade scored the only TD of the game in a 12 yard run. It was a tight defensive game. Marion had 79 yards rushing; W.C., 71. Marion had 94 passing yardage to our 5.

Hudson (0-0) Many of the Eagles were out because of an outbreak of flu. At the end of the game a series of downs were run to determine a winner. Hudson had more yardage.

Morganton (0-6) Morganton turned and intercepted a pass into a touchdown that smashed W.C.'s 25 game winning streak. Central led statistic wise—first downs 8-4, passing yardage 16-10, and rushing yardage 96-11.

West Carteret (26-0) Bundy scored on a 6 yard run; Raymer on a 40 yard run; Benson on a reverse; and Frazier on an 11 yard shot up the middle.

Enloe (13-19) Central's strong points of this game were the quarterbacking of Bundy, the running of Meade (gained 76 yards in 14 carries), and Swofford intercepting two passes.

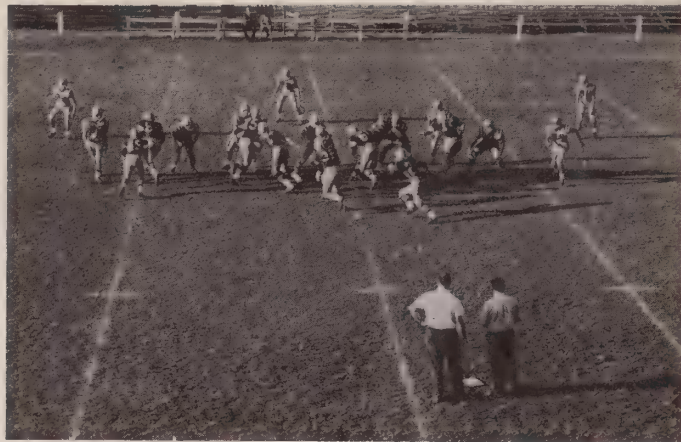

The Eagles value a moment of prayer before each game.

Larry Bare (37), ignited with Eagle dynamite, moves in to stop a fast-moving Morganton back.

Morganton's eager 38 attempts to steal the show by intercepting a Central pass, but his efforts are in vain.

High anticipation develops during early practice as both players and coaches prepare for the season opener.

Hickory (19-21) Hickory edged by with a victory because of the two blocked extra point kicks. Meade scored on a 7 yard run. Raymer on a 19 yard pass from Bundy. The injury of captain Steve Fletcher spurred the Eagles to another score—a 3 yard run by Frazier after a 28 yard pass from Bundy to Raymer.

Newton (13-13) Raymer scored on an 8 yard run after a 62 yard drive. Swofford kicked the extra point. The final score was made by Bundy on a two yard roll-out.

Against opponents our experienced defensive line forms an unbreakable iron chain, which prevents a great gain of yardage.

Lenior (27-7) The first score was set up by Swofford who ran 50 yards from a punt. Jones then scored on a pass from Bundy. Brookshire scored from the 23, Bundy passed 50 yards to Fletcher on the 3 and then went in to score. The last TD was made by Raymer on a 92 yard kick-off return.

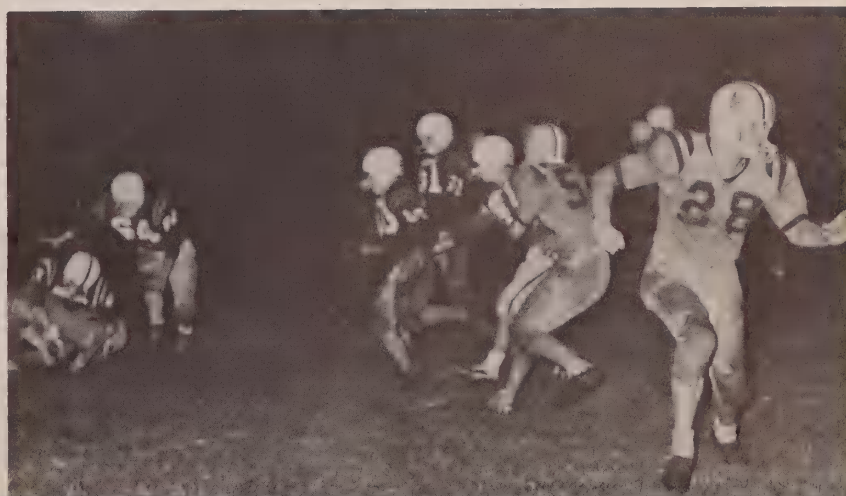

Valdese (25-7) Two scores came from Bundy's passes—one a 74 yarder to Fletcher and the other a 29 yarder to Billings. The other two TD's came on a pair of 3 yard plunges by Meade and Brookshire.

It was the half-time rest and "pep talk" that helped boost our Eagles on to a well-deserved victory over the fierce Marion opposition.

At the close of another hard fought battle, our mighty Eagles are eagerly praised and congratulated by throngs of spectators on a great victory.

Quarterback, Jerry Brookshire, is pulled down by a Hudson player after he had completed a three-yard pass.

Cheerleaders

Whenever someone sees a poster on the wall or hears the cry "B-e-e-e-eat . . ." he knows that the cheerleaders are at work. These girls practice all summer and spend several hours a week making posters and planning pep rallies. The cheerleaders this year have helped mold the Central spirit—even when the chips were down. Most of all they have spread this spirit throughout all the sports, not just a few such as football and basketball. These girls have let each team know that "We back the Eagles, we back the best!"

As the victory of the game hangs on balance, Tootie Raymer jumps to her feet.

Susannah Cashion and Lynn Walker led cheers that helped defeat Valdese on Dads' Night.

The cheerleaders are responsible for the many outdoor pep rallies that led us to victory.

Vivacious J.V. cheerleaders encourage students to attend the games as they support their team.

Homecoming Court

After the many days of voting, discussing the different candidates, and voting again to break ties, the students viewed for the first time together, their choices for homecoming court. The young ladies exhibited the sparkling freshness of youth, accented by the bright lights which shone on the football field.

The homecoming court and sponsors were in their places on the field. Miss Jan Forehand stepped forward, and received the glittering crown. The audience rose in applauding acknowledgement as the loud speaker indicated, "Ladies and gentlemen, your 1964 Homecoming Queen."

The Homecoming Week-end was the first big entry in the 1964-65 school year at Wilkes Central. The activities began with the parade at ten o'clock. Ruddy and excited faces greeted the morning. Apprehension was thick, but when Miss Jan Forehand, homecoming queen, appeared, doubts quickly evaporated. "Let's go" was heard, and the parade was on its way.

Flowers were bought; each had to know his place on the field. Happiness in success was accompanied by aching backs. However, our excellent choice was exhibited when the queen was crowned. Jan, who had weathered many activities, was still as fresh and radiant as each student felt at this moment. Having received the crown, she took the roses into her arms and portrayed, in excellent taste, the unending and undaunted spirit which is Wilkes Central.

Reigning as queen of the homecoming festivities, Jan was featured on the Student Council's float.

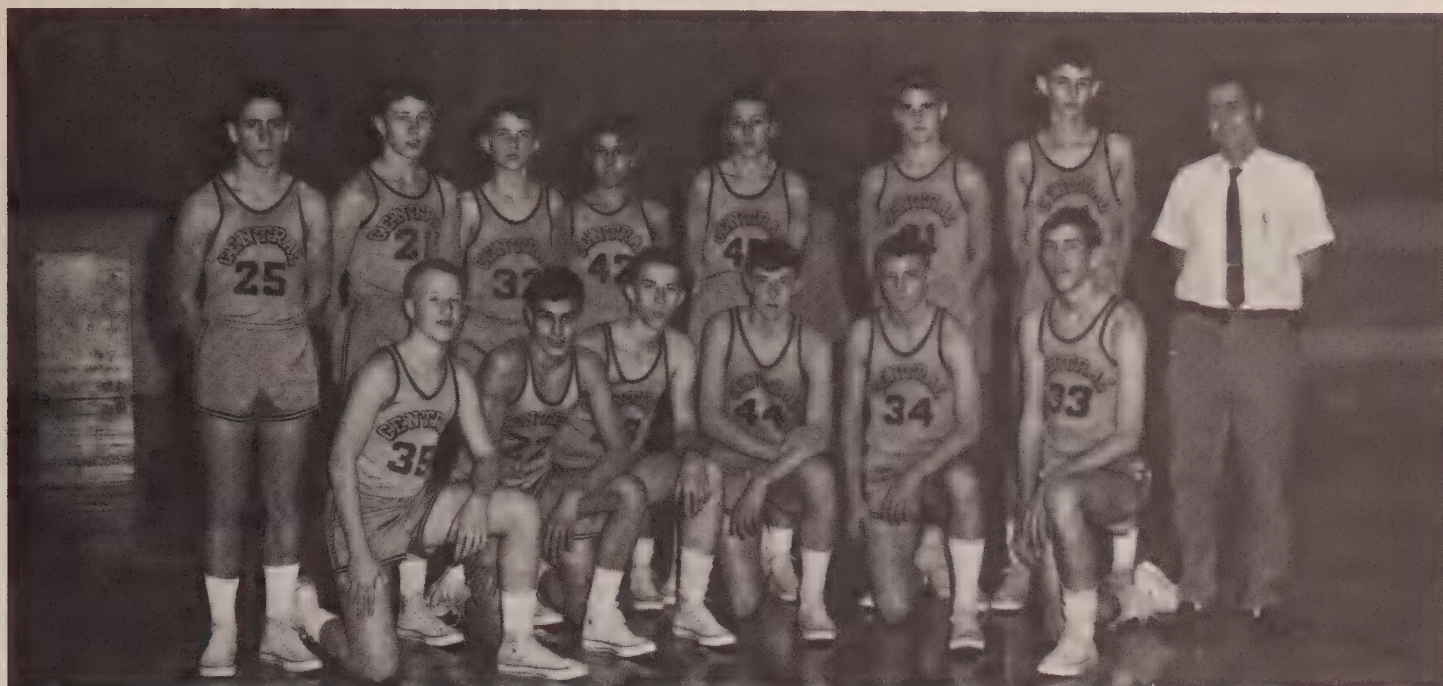

Jan Forehand was crowned Wilkes Central's 1964 Homecoming Queen by Nick Wehrmann, Quarterback Club vice-president.

Roger Necessary, Bobby Taylor, Bill Gwyn, Dexter Hoffman, Steve Eller, Sam Smoak, Coach Madison.

J. V. Basketball

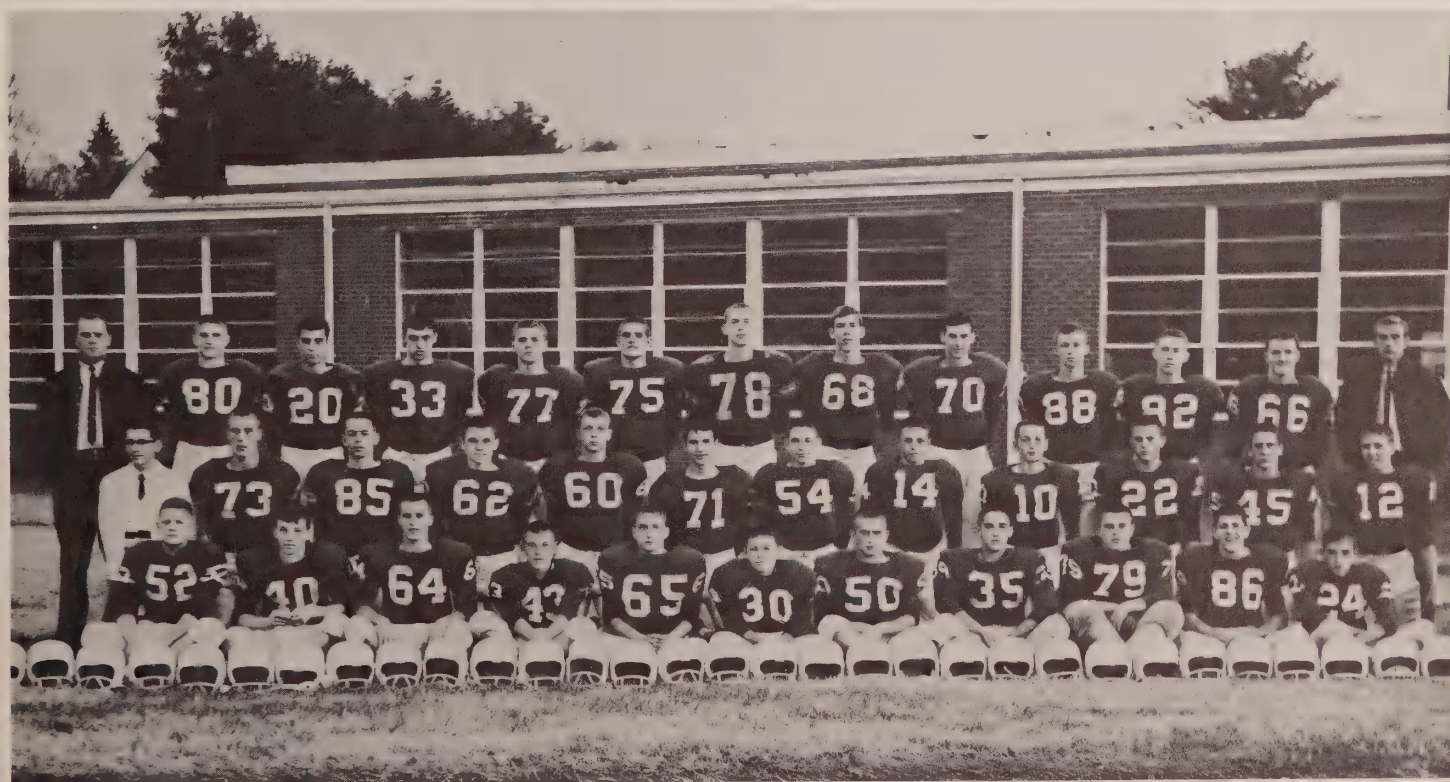

Coached by Mr. Charlie Madison, the J.V. basketball team has led Wilkes Central to many victories. They have also had the sportsmanship and team work that keep Wilkes Central on top.

J. V. Football

The J.V. football team had a very successful season. The team watched with great interest because everyone knew that these players would be Central's future champions.

Varsity Basketball

Our Eagles under the capable leadership of captain Jerry Gant gave each game their best in both ability and in sportsmanship. The team never became discouraged even in defeat, and entered each game with that fighting spirit characteristic of our Eagles. The season will long be remembered by both the boys and fans for the outstanding ability shown by each player. They each learned the importance of co-operation and teamwork. For their tireless work and consistent efforts, we salute Coach Welborn, Captain Jerry Gant, and the entire 1965 squad.

Although our girls varsity squad did not win their first few games, they came back strong to be the victors in our first conference games. These opening games were not, however, the only ones won; our Eagles played hard and were able to gain more victories as the season progressed. Led by co-captains Nancy Icenhour and Debby Liles, the team showed the will to win, but if defeated they showed good sportsmanship and determination to win next time.

Nancy Icenhour and Marcelle Morgan both struggle for control of the ball during the opening of the Jonesville game.

Debbie Liles and Nancy Icenhour get words of advice and encouragement during half time from Coach Madison.

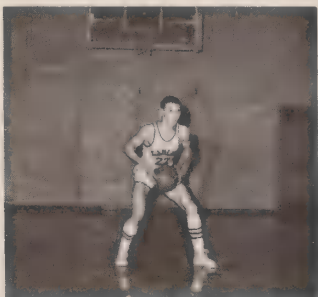

Coach Tom Welborn

In his second season as boys' varsity basketball coach, Tom Welborn fielded another successful and well-drilled team. Under his leadership the team has improved greatly. Many of our games went "down to the wire" and gave the spectators many anxious moments. Coach Welborn is proud of his team and looks forward to another winning season.

Wrestling

The 1964-65 wrestling session marks the eighth season for this sport at Wilkes Central. Over the past eight years we have had two state championships and four conference championships. The sport is unique in that anyone, ranging from very small to very large, may participate. Because of the outstanding job done by the thirty-eight wrestlers, school spirit has been promoted and the Central tradition has been retained.

During an exerting practice, these boys learn and apply the fundamentals of wrestling.

Baseball

Baseball began its fifteenth year at Wilkes Central with four returning lettermen and one returning all-conference player, Tony Wingler. Last year's team posted an excellent 8-3 record with a second place finish in the conference. With a squad of fifteen experienced boys, Coach Groce had reason to expect a successful season.

A quick pitch to Tony Wingler could put Jack Brown out during a practice session.

Track

Track at Wilkes Central enters its eleventh year with approximately forty-five boys competing to represent their school in the five field events and seven running events of a track meet. Each year there are five track meets plus a conference, a bi-conference, and an association meet. With a young team and seven returning lettermen, Coach Branch is optimistic about the performance his team will make this year.

Gilreath, Tommy Boyd, Benny Bundy, Johnny Swofford, Ed Finley, Sonny Thomas. THIRD ROW: Bill Summers, Steve Fletcher, Stuart Foster, Randy Cooke, Tom Eller, Bobby Jones, Jim Trivette.

The members of the golf team are: Larry Cooper, Nick Wehrmann, Tim Day, Jim Benson, Ronnie Barlow, Bucko Buchan.

Ronnie Barlow prepares to drive off from the first tee during practice.

The many hours spent by Nick Wehrmann practicing gained for him respect from his team.

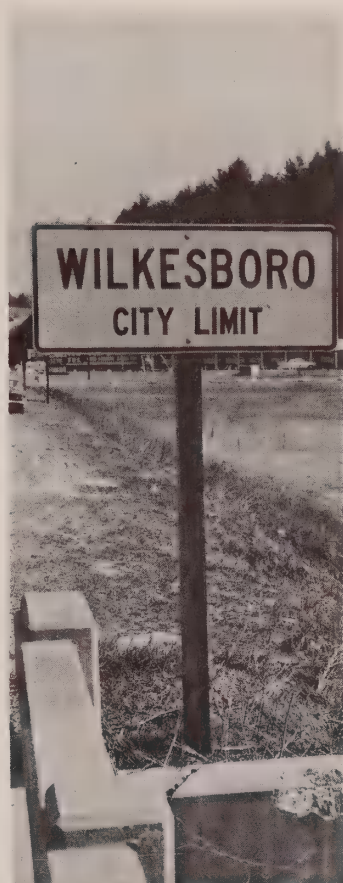

Golf

Golf is one of Wilkes Central's popular sports. In the past six years, our golf team has twice placed third out of the twenty-three groups competing. The players compete not only against other schools, but also among themselves. Both individualism and team work are traits of a good golf team. Our team's hard work and Coach Hoffman's efforts have been shown by their excellent record. Wilkes Central is proud of its golf team and looks forward to each season with high hopes.

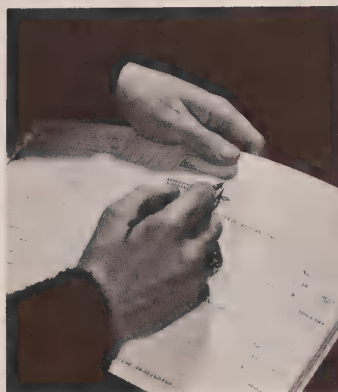

Bucko Buchan shows Jim Benson and Larry Cooper the way to sink a putt.

Advertisements

Carbon copies of receipts, checks and loose coins, hours of selling in the autumn sun were part of an annual staff member's job in selling ads. The pages sold and the support given by advertisers make it possible for each student at Wilkes Central to have an opportunity to purchase the 1965 GREEN AND GOLD at a reasonable price. These factors make us proud to present our advertisers.

NORTH CAROLINA'S FUTURE IS Geared to Forestry

INDUSTRY

Forestry is vital to the future of North Carolina because of its role as protector of soil, water and wildlife resources. Forestry's importance also results from the fact that it has become an essential crop to the State's economy and because it provides the raw materials for several booming industries. In these many roles forestry affects the standard of living or per capita income of nearly every Tar Heel. As forestry prospers so will North Carolina prosper because:

- ★ Forestry is North Carolina's third ranking industry with an annual product valued at $750,000,000;
- ★ Forestry provides jobs for 78,000 Tar Heels and is second only to textiles as a source of employment;
- ★ Forestry adds $243,000,000 to North Carolina's economic income in the form of wages;
- ★ Forestry's annual $35,000,000 loss to fires represents needless loss in Tar Heel wages, property and natural resources.
